The timing and character of distributions for federal income tax purposes are determined in accordance with income tax regulations, which differ from generally accepted accounting principles (“GAAP”). As such, all or a portion of this distribution may be reportable as a return of capital on your 2023 federal income tax return. The final tax character of distributions declared in 2023 will be determined in January 2024 and reported to you separately from this notice on IRS Form 1099-DIV.

For the purposes of satisfying Section 19(a) reporting obligations, the Fund estimates that 100% of the distribution for this current month is attributable to a return of capital when calculated using GAAP. These amounts, calculated in accordance with GAAP, are not intended as a disclosure of the treatment of distributions for federal tax purposes.
